NEW LOOK FOR COAST TELEPHONE DIRECTORY

According to F. J. Lundy, Southern Bell's District Manager, the new Mississippi Coast Telephone Directory will carry in color a picture of Old Fort Massachusetts, one of the prominent landmarks of the Mississippi Coast.

Lundy said delivery of the new edition of the Coast directory will begin on July 21, 1965, and will probably take several days to complete. He asks anyone who doesn't receive his directory by July 28, 1965, to call the business office and ask for the service representative who handles his account.

"We want to put these new directories into our customers' hands as soon as possible. It will help us carry this out if any customers who don't get their directories by July 28th will be sure to let us know," Lundy said.

The telephone directory is a sure-fire way of measuring the Coast's progress. This year, 59,500 will be distributed as compared to 50,550 directories last year.

Lundy asks that customers please throw away their old directories when they get their new ones. That way, there's no chance of getting wrong numbers by looking in the old directories by mistake.

"Also," Lundy said, "please look in the directory to make sure of the numbers you want, before calling information. This will save you time and inconvenience and help you get the best service."

THREE-CAR COLLISION CAUSES INJURY TO ONE PERSON

One person was reported injured in a three-car accident Friday night on the Bay St. Louis toll bridge.

Miss. Highway Patrolman J. R. McNeal, investigating officer, said Aline G. Wiegand, 16, Westwego, La., was taken to Gulfport Memorial Hospital for treatment of bruised jaw, laceration of the face and was admitted for observation.

The girl was a passenger in a car operated by Robert Wiegand. Drivers of the other vehicles identified by the officer as Art Lee Peters, Waveland, and Henry A. Maurin, New Orleans.

The accident, which occurred at 6:40 p.m., resulted in estimated damages of $50 to the Peters vehicle, $700 to the Wiegand station wagon, and the Maurin 1957 car was listed as a total loss by Patrolman McNeal.

BAY ST. LOUIS NOW HAS 5625 TELEPHONES IN USE

The Southern Bell Telephone Company is spending more money for construction of facilities and service improvement in Mississippi during 1965 than in any other year.

Vice President C. L. Lott of Jackson said today that the company already has spent over $18 million for construction and service improvement in Mississippi during the first six months of the year.

This is $1½ million more than the $16½ million Southern Bell spent in the first six months of 1964 in Mississippi, an increase of 9 per cent.

"These expenditures reflect the fast pace of progress and the expanding economy of Mississippi," Mr. Lott said, "and of Southern Bell's effort to meet the ever-growing demand for more and better telephone service."

Mr. Lott said that Southern Bell now expects to spend about $34 million — an all-time high for this state — for construction and expanding economy of Mississippi, during 1965.

"The impact of the estimated $34 million expenditures will be felt by Mississippians in every part of the state served by Southern Bell," Mr. Lott said. "Every portion of the state — including rural areas — is involved in the construction."

The money is being spent for new or enlarged buildings, central office equipment, cables, poles and other equipment designed to provide telephone customers with ever improving service.

Southern Bell now serves over 558,000 telephones in Mississippi, including 5625 in Bay St. Louis.

Sheriff's Reports

TWO TELEVISION SETS MISSING

Two television sets were reported missing from the residence of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Taylor, Route 1, Bay St. Louis, during the day Tuesday.

Sheriff Sylvan Ladner said Mrs. Taylor called at 3:30 p.m. after returning from a trip and told him the sets had been taken since 6 a.m. Tuesday when her husband left for work.

The sets were listed as a 19-inch general Electric and an 11-inch Admiral. Chief Deputy Eido Depreo assisted in the investigation.

A 1950 Dodge stolen Saturday was recovered by the sheriff's department half an hour after it was reported missing.

Chief Deputy Eido Depreo said Richard W. Flake, 33, of Florida, is being held in the county jail awaiting a preliminary hearing on a charge of auto theft.

Edward T. Woods, 323 Ballentine St., reported the theft of his car to the sheriff's office about 11:30 a.m. and about noon Deputy Depreo stated he saw the vehicle, driven by Flake, on U. S. Highway 90 service drive near the Bay bridge.

Willard Gibson, 46, of Shoreline Park, was bound over to await action of the Hancock County grand jury by Beat 5 Justice of the Peace Nolan S. Ladner, on a charge of arson, Gibson, who is being held in jail in lieu of $5,000 bond, is alleged to have set fire to Rose's Place, a lounge located on U. S. Highway 90 approximately five miles west of Bay St. Louis, on the night of July 4.

The lounge listed as being owned by Mr. and Mrs. Emmett Kennedy and leased by Elijah Lee, was destroyed, Sheriff Sylvan Ladner said.

Gibson was picked up by Chief Deputy Eido Depreo after receiving information by witnesses that Gibson had been heard, prior to the fire, that he would burn the place down, the sheriff added.

Sheriff Ladner said Gibson was taken to Jackson after he agreed to take a lie detector test in connection with the investigation, but before the test was given, he signed a statement concerning the case.

The City of Bay St. Louis was granted an easement by the Hancock County board of supervisors at Monday's meeting, for installation of a gas transmission line to a new school.

The four-inch line is to be laid from Washington Street across U. S. Highway 90 to Blue Meadow road where a new municipal high school is to be built.

In other business, the $4,197 bid of Sanders Tractor Co., Gulfport, to sell the county a tractor and rotary cutter was accepted.

Roy Baxter was named as county representative on a new commission which is studying the possibility of securing a county airport.

The board also authorized advertisement for bids for alterations in the Courthouse which would involve removal of a wall separating the board of supervisors' room and the sheriff's office to provide more space for use of the sheriff when not being used by the board.

The board voted to approve an offer by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration to install a teletype communication system between Mississippi Test Facility and the sheriff's office at a cost of $500 per month.

Construction of a new courthouse in Bay St. Louis and possible building sites are presently under study by the Hancock County board of supervisors.

The architectural firm of August Perez and Associates, New Orleans, was employed by the board Monday to prepare plans for a new building on a contingency fee basis.

The board noted 10 to 15 acres are considered necessary for the building.

While one site at the corner of U. S. Highway and Dunbar Avenue was mentioned during discussion, no commitments have been made, R. G. Hubbard, board president stated.

It is estimated a courthouse of adequate size with air conditioning and fully serviced would cost as much as $1,200,000.

One of the reasons for consideration of a new courthouse, it was cited, is the fact it would cost according to the architectural firm, $200,000 to renovate the existing building and there is also a problem of adequate parking space.

The board, through local and private legislation, recently secured at a special session of the Mississippi Legislature, has obtained use of some funds which could be used for purchasing a building site.

By authority of the legislation, the board transferred $120,000 from the road and bridge bond and interest sinking fund, where a surplus existed, to two other funds.

The county road and bridge fund received $90,000 and $30,000 was credited to the general fund where it could be used for land purchase.

Jessie Landers loves his fishing but says he likes bowling best. He has a number of trophies to show how good he is at bowling. As to fishing can't vouch for his ability at catching them.

Of course all hunters brag about their bird and rabbits dogs. Believe it or not what, we call a humble poodle according to a friend and fellow fancier who has had wide experience with every breed of dog said the larger poodles were excellent retrievers and watch-dogs, and were used many years ago for hunting. We have one in our family, who is a one-man dog, still, he is polite and friendly to every member of the household. The children make a football out of him and he loves it.

Did you know that a branch off a pine tree properly trimmed makes a handy fly swatter and is good when those green flies out in the marshes are giving you a bad time.

For those who like to make bird houses, one can be made with four gallon plastic jugs placed on a wooden base with a roof made of most any water proof material. Cut holes in the side of jug and attach perches from the floor. You will have a four room bird apartment. Paint jugs a different color for effectiveness.

Rossie Malone is the director of the Fish and Game Commission in Georgia. He is doing a good job and is a swell guy to know.

Mr. and Mrs. Tony Enterante, Jr. visited Mr. and Mrs. Luke Elliott in Baton Rouge last week end. Of course the men folks, did some fishing and caught a nice bunch of fish.

Boy Scouts are the same the world over. Attended a scout outing last week. The boys enjoyed the usual things, hunting frogs and snakes as well as doing some fishing. Of course meal time was one of the main features and can they prepare their own meals? Just like mother used to do. The men in charge did a good job seeing that the boys had an exciting time. Scouting is wonderful training for little Johnny. See that your boys join a troop. You will never regret it. President Roosevelt once said, "Boy Scouts made our best soldiers. They are already trained."

What has happened to the soft crabs? It is a hard job to get enough for a decent sandwich. Haven't heard of any good catches lately.

Capt. Howard Duff recently joined the fishing fraternity. Already an ardent enthusiast. Having six little fishermen in his family the captain expects to do a little fishing himself as well as doing the instruction when time permits.

If you expect to do fly fishing, learn the right way. There is a skill to fly fishing so don't get the idea that when you buy a fly rod you are a fly fisherman. Go with someone who knows and you can get a few helpful pointers. A good fly fisherman is a sight.

BOBBY CAMORS

Was a pleasure to meet Bobby Camors who was in the Bay on vacation recently. Bobby resided in Bay St. Louis for a number of years but now lives in Jeanerette, La. Boating and fishing was his favorite sports and at one time had charge of the Sea Scouts here. The boys had some wonderful times aboard his different boats. Bobby said he is always glad to return to see his friends and do some fishing. Don't stay away so long, Buddy.

The parade is over, and Tim is hot, dusty, and his feet hurt. This was his first parade, and somehow it didn't come off as he thought. He didn't expect to be the whole show, but he did think he and his tuba would stand out a little. As it happened, he was just "one of the band."

Later, he will realize that if each player weren't just "one of the band" there wouldn't be any band at all. He'll start thinking from there, and the parade will seem a lot better in memory than it does right now. For Tim has a good sense of value, for a boy his age—thanks in part, to the teachings of his church and church school.

Tim will weather his disappointments and march successfully through life, instead of giving up. Will your youngsters be as lucky?

Give your children the chance to go to church school.

Colonel Davis announced that it is of paramount importance that students graduating from high school advise their local board immediately, in person or in writing of their intention to enter college this fall. He further advised that upon enrolling in college they should furnish the registrar's office with selective service number and request that SSS

SOIL CONSERVATION NEWS

Mississippi farmers should receive about $750,000 this year from the sale of cucumbers to Brown-Miller Company of New Orleans, Louisiana.

In South Mississippi where the business has flourished since 1927, they call the crop "pickles".

Many of the farmers growing pickles are cooperators with the local soil conservation district, which has assisted them in terracing the cucumber fields. Many are

Form 109 or its equivalent be sent to their local board. "Upon receipt of this information," Colonel Davis stated, "the local board will reclassify the registrant into Class IIS for the current year, and he will continue in this classification during the year so long as he pursues a course of study satisfactory to the college."

The Director warns the college student who is not deferred or holding a IIS classification to advise his local board if he intends to continue his education or seek to obtain his Master or Doctor degree. By the same token, he advises that college students graduating, and there is no evidence of their continuing their formal education, will be reclassified by the local board. This classification will be determined by current information in their files. "It is therefore of paramount importance," the Director emphasized, "for the registrant to have correct information in his file indicating his current status."

The Director suggests that it will be advantageous to both the registrant and his local board for him to personally check with the local board clerk to bring his file up to date, as the ages of induction are now in the late twenties, and if the calls continue at the existing rate, inductions may soon be expected to come from the nineteen year old group.

small farmers, averaging about 1 acre per farm in pickles. Few have over 5 or 6 acres. "They've converted reduced cotton acreage into pickles," says D. W. Fortenberry, work unit conservationist, Soil Conservation Service, Prentiss. "A few are so pleased, they're going to cucumbers altogether instead of cotton."

According to Earl Holloway, Prentiss, field manager of Brown-Miller Company, some of the farmers are making as much on one acre of land in pickles as they do on two or three acres in cotton. Since pickles must be rotated, they follow the crop with hay, soybeans, or other crops.

Holloway says Brown-Miller now has about 5,000 acres of cucumbers under contract in South Mississippi, from which a 500,000 bushel harvest is expected.

The growing region extends through Walthall, Pike, Marion, Jefferson Davis, Lamar, Covington, Simpson, Newton, Perry, Stone, and Lawrence counties. Farmers from adjoining counties also grow cucumbers and bring them in to sell at one of the salting stations scattered throughout the area. Several cooperators of the Hancock County Soil Conservation District are growing cucumbers according to D. T. Click, soil conservationist. Cucumbers bring in cash when other crops are still in the field.

Jefferson Davis is a leading cucumber-producing county, and a cooperator, Louis Daley, Jr., of Carson, is a representative grower. Mr. Daley, with SCS technical assistance, has terraced his pickle patch to conserve soil. He has put in the necessary outlets for drainage and planted them in bahiagrass to conserve soil. The steep slopes he has put into pasture.

Along with cucumbers, Mr. Daley grows red bell peppers for Brown-Miller to use in garnishing. Mr. Daley has been growing cucumbers since 1927 when Brown-Miller opened its station at Carson. Although he raises corn, cotton, and beef cattle, he declares that cucumbers are his most profitable crop, and he would raise more if he "could be real sure of help to gather them."

"Help" is day labor hired to pick the crop — and may consist of all ages from six-year-old children to grandmothers.

Pickers here get half the sale price, which on the day we visited, ranged from $5.50 per hundred pounds for No. 1's (the smallest size) to $1.50 for No. 3's.

Mr. Daley says: "I'm looking to get $1,200 from this 2-acre patch this year." Not all this will be profit. In all he has invested $6 in seed and $48 in fertilizer, in addition to other expenses.

The Brown-Miller pickle processing plant is located at Wiggins in Stone County, but during picking season — about May to July — pickers with their wares jam the salting stations — at Tyertown in Walthall County, Columbia in Marion, Mount Olive in Covington — and at Prentiss and Carson in Jefferson Davis.

Here the cucumbers are weighed, sorted, and packed into salt vats. Vehicles lined up outside the open sheds range from jalopies towing carts laden with bulging bags to pick-up trucks and passenger cars bursting at the seams with sacks, baskets, and hampers of all descriptions, and pickers of all ages.

In the age old tradition of market places, this is a social gathering. Children dart about sucking on crushed ice cones drenched with bright strawberry syrup. Teenagers flirt under the trees. Old men swap yarns. Coquettes peer out from beneath split straw sunshades.

A buxom Negroess in a bandana waits in line. She is Bessie Dillon, RFD, Silver Creek, who was driven in from Lawrence County with her load of pickles. She picked 5 sacks this morning from her farm — many the choice No. 1's.

Cooperator Napoleon Hathorn, Mt. Zion community, near Prentiss, says he has been growing pickles for nearly 40 years — averages No. 3's 300 per acre on the crop. But he doesn't have to split profits with pickers. The Hathorn family harvests its own crop.

These Mississippi pickles — purchases at Prentiss — thousands and thousands of bushes — will be put in salt vats — later transported to Wiggins for processing. Eventually they will be sold, under a variety of labels, literally all over the world.

The number of steel companies producing one million tons or more of steel each increased to 19 last year in the United States, when U. S. production of raw steel was a record 127,075,767 net tons.

Seventy-five per cent of the curb weight of the average 1965 automobile is iron and steel.

Stranger — "I've come out here to make an honest living."

Native — "Well, there's not much competition."

The 33-foot-diameter, 138-foot-tall stage — designated S-ICD — is the first of 10 Saturn V boosters to be assembled at Michoud by The Boeing Company's Launch Systems Branch. Following installation of tubing, ducting, wiring and other components, the stage will be barged to NASA's Marshall Space Flight Center at Huntsville, Ala. At Marshall, the S-ICD will be mated with the second and third stages of the Saturn V space vehicle for tests to determine the flight characteristics of the 364-foot-tall rocket. The first Saturn V is scheduled to be launched in 1967.
